Q: in the meantime vs in the meanwhileWhat's the difference ? A: In the meanwhile doesn't really make sense. It would just be "meanwhile". Meanwhile is something happening at the same time that is of contrast. ie It was quiet in the house, meanwhile outside the train noise was loud. in the meantime is used more to say something is being done for a short time until something else happens. I need to go to work soon, in the meantime I am drinking more coffee Q: In the meantime, I actually bought them to compare with the previous ones. I'll let you know later what they are different between with each other. この表現は自然ですか？ A: In the meantime, I actually bought them to compare with the previous ones. I'll let you know later how they are different. Q: In the meantime, please wait for the e-mail we will send you. この表現は自然ですか？ A: It's grammatically okay, but most people would probably say, "In the meantime, please wait for our email." Q: I'm going to check it out first. In the meantime, why don't you have a sit and relax? この表現は自然ですか？ A: everything is good, but instead of have a SIT, say have a SEAT☺ Q: In the meantime,help yourself with some snacks. この表現は自然ですか？ A: In the meantime, help yourself to some snacks.
