

Click Here

...and I won't back down from a debate. They also marry people who are genuine, and are about being authentic even if authentic isn't pretty. Get a FREE Love & Relationship Reading with a Keen Psychic to gain clarity today! Get a FREE Love & Relationship Reading with a Keen Psychic to gain clarity today! Because of all of

Zodiac, the eighth sign in the zodiac, belongs to those born between the dates of October 23rd and November 21st. Learn all about the Scorpio sign below. Scorpio Zodiac Sign Traits Passionate, independent, and unafraid to blaze their own trail no matter what others think, Scorpio signs make a statement wherever they go. They love debates, aren't afraid of controversy, and won't back down from a debate. They also marry people who are genuine, and are about being authentic even if authentic isn't pretty. Get a FREE Love & Relationship Reading with a Keen Psychic to gain clarity today! Get a FREE Love & Relationship Reading with a Keen Psychic to gain clarity today! Because of all of these traits, a Scorpio can seem intimidating and somewhat closed off to those who don't know them well. But what people don't realize is that even though Scorpio may seem brusque, as a water sign, they also are very in tune with their emotions, and sometimes may find themselves caught up in their feelings. This leads to Scorpio's central conflict: Their feelings are what drives them and strengthens them, but their mutability can scare them and make them feel vulnerable and out of control. Because of this conflict, Scorpios, like their namesake, the scorpion, put up an outer shell and may seem prickly. But once people get beyond the shell, they find a loyal, loving person whose passion knows no bounds. Scorpio dives into all life has to offer with 110% enthusiasm. A Scorpio will be your most loyal friend, most dedicated employee/and your worst enemy, if they want to be. In love, Scorpio can seem cautious at first, and may set up a series of "tests" for their potential partner, deciding to cross them off their list if they don't meet their demands. The trouble is, they tend to keep their partner out of the loop on what, exactly, they want, making their partner feel like they have to play mind reader. If a Scorpio and their partner can get past this initial hurdle, the connection will be intense, in both highs and lows. A Scorpio will love harder and fight harder than any other sign, and wants their partner to be absolutely honest. They will be even if it's not what the partner wants to hear. In the bedroom, Scorpio is generous, imaginative, and always up for anythingall night long. Scorpio in Love Loved by fiery Mars and destructive Pluto, a Scorpio in love has one mode for relationshipsand that's full-on. Scorpio loves romance and passion, including up-all-night fights. Scorpio never does anything halfway, and believes that true love comes with true fights... Discover More Scorpio Friendship Style What Are Scorpios Like As Friends? A Scorpio friend will tell you like it is, whether you want to know or not. The good news: You never have to worry about who you stand with a Scorpio, they will let you know... Discover More Scorpio Career, Money & Success Traits Scorpio's greatest career strength: Intensity. Scorpio is much happier leading the pack or providing an authentic opinion than being a team player. When Scorpio goes in, they go all in... Discover More Traits Scorpio's Motto "You never know what you are capable of until you try." Scorpios are amazing! Their name says it all: S for seductive C for cerebral O for original R for reactive P for passionate I for intuitive O for outstanding Read today's horoscope Scorpio's Greatest Gifts So many other signs spend valuable time and energy beating around the bush, desperately trying to find an approach that makes the fewest waves when it comes to confronting a conflict. Not Scorpio. Blessed with a deep sense of self, Scorpio is always able to say exactly what's on their mind, even if it's not what people want to hear. Scorpio is forthright and honest, and those two characteristics commandeer a ton of respect, both at home and at work. Scorpio's Greatest Challenges Repeat after us: It's all right to cry. Scorpio tries to hard to seem tough that they sometimes cut off their vulnerable side entirely, seeming prickly, uncaring, and cold to outsiders. While expressing emotion is scary, learning how to do it is key for Scorpio, since presenting an "I don't care" veneer can only work for so long before it get's exhausting! Scorpio's Secret Weapon Their empathy. Also it may not seem this way at first glance, watchful Scorpio can read a room very quickly and can clue into how everyone else is feeling. Because of this, they can immediately tune into someone who needs TLC and often knows the right thing to say or do to change the mood or tenor of a room when it needs to be changed. The 5 Top Reasons to Love Being a Scorpio Passionate and intense, your sign is sexy with a capital S. You don't even have to try, and know sexy is an attitude you can present just as well in sweats as you can in stillettos. You know what you want and go after it no questions asked. You don't get intimidated easily, and stand up for justice when you see it. You have a unique sense of humor. You're not afraid to say what other people are thinking, and your sometimes cynical take on the world is creative, smart, and funny as hell. You're passionate. When you decide to put your heart on full display, there's no stopping youwhich is why you should do it more often! Famous Scorpios The constellation known as Pisces has been associated with many divine figures in history, such as Poseidon/Neptune, Christ, Vishnu, and the Sumerian goddess Inanna. Pisces is the Latin word for "fish," and in Greek mythology, this constellation represents the koi fish that saved Aphrodite and her son Eros from the sea monster Typhon.As a reward, the two fishes were placed in the heavens to shine for all of eternity. Venus, the Roman version of Aphrodite, is said to have an exalted position in Pisces, an affinity that echoes back to her gratitude for the fishes' hospitality and help. Pisces season in the western tropical zodiac begins on February 19, commencing the final phase of Winter in the Northern Hemisphere. This is the time of year when the chill of winter is beginning to yield to the oncoming warmth of Spring, and the days are continuing to increase in light. The underlying seasonal sense that growth and renewal are soon returning to the world is mirrored in the reflective and inwardly creative imaginings of the Piscean archetype.Mutable ModePisces is the fourth and final of the mutable signs in the zodiac wheel, who all hold an energy of change, liminality, and adaptation at the end of one season, and the beginning of the next. Pisces begins the last phase of winter, when the cold season is best established, lending to the fluid and changeable sign qualities of Pisces.Water ElementPisces's element is water, the second heaviest element, thought by ancient astrologers to be the fluid, adaptive, yet a tangible form of matter. Water represents the moistening and cohering principle that binds and connects all forms of nature.Without it, nothing that takes a material form could "stick" together. Water fertilizes earth so that nature and creativity can incubate and bloom. Pisces' creativity, intuition, imagination, and strong inter-relational talents are all akin to the connectivity of the water element. In classical astrology, Jupiter is the planetary ruler of both Sagittarius and Pisces. Sagittarius was thought to be the day, or diurnal home of Jupiter, with Jupiter finding a second nocturnal home in sensitive and soulful Pisces. Jupiter has a full affinity with the imaginative and spiritual tendencies of the sign, but because it is in its nocturnal home, these themes take on a more interior and meditative expression.This placement presents a more thoughtful, reflective, and gentle version of Jupiter's bold planetary energy. Pisces is potentially the archetypal more private and mysterious seeker than the ebullient, outgoing Sagittarius. Those born with Jupiter in the sign of the Two Fishes tend to have a strong belief in the unseen forces of the universe and are often mystic seekers and teachers.Detriment of MercuryPisces is in polarity with the mutable earth sign Virgo. Ruled by Jupiter, Pisces likes to seek, expand, and dissolve boundaries, where Virgo, ruled by Mercury, likes to organize the material world, focus on fine details, and seek perfection. When in the opposite sign of its preferred home, Mercury is said to be in detriment, or at a sort of disadvantage in Pisces.Imagine the planet of clear communication and information having to live in Jupiter's boundless, philosophical world. Mercury may get lost, going "off-road" on adventures and storytelling tangents, and would find it difficult to communicate and translate its ideas.The result is Mercury having to compensate and translate big Jupiterian philosophical ideas into day-to-day conversations. This could appear as a poetic and epic use of language, and a quest for truth in meaning in all intellectual endeavors.It could also mean that those born with this placement may struggle with focusing on the day-to-day and may often dream/dream or lose track of time. They may have to work harder on creating intellectual structure and getting to the point. And while this planet-sign combination could present challenges and ways that these natives need to learn at their own pace, it could produce poets and songwriters as well.Exaltation of VenusSince Venus is exalted in the opposite sign Pisces, she is said to be in her fall in Virgo. While not in her domicile, Venus is still very powerfully placed in Pisces as an esteemed guest of honor. In Jupiter's nocturnal sign, she has access to unique resources that help her deliver some of her most positive gifts and expressions.Venus' powers of love, attraction, beauty, and art blend well with Jupiter's spiritual and affirming energies, giving natives with this placement some extra luck or ease in these matters. They can produce very sweet, sensitive, and charming people, who sacrifice themselves for the good of others. Venus, with this energy, may also have strong creative talents, taking their art to transcendental, inspiring levels.Modern Discoveries: Neptune's discovery and Uranus' discovery, both by astronomers as this planet's significations. Inspired by disturbances Uranus' orbit, Neptune's founders followed theoretical calculations, and a sort of scientific "faith" in its existence. It turns out it had been observed for centuries before but was mistaken for a blue fixed star. The affirmation of Neptune's existence seems to have unfolded when the world's perceptions and inventions caught up with a dawning reality of how expansive our universe truly is.The illusory states that Neptune is connected to can even be connected to the way it casts an illusion on astronomers until they understood what they were seeing. The awe-inspiring and innovative themes surrounding Neptune's discovery lend themselves to how Neptune earned its significations and connection as a modern sub-ruler to imaginative Pisces. In the modern astrology system of the Twelfth Letter Alphabet, each zodiac sign rules one of the twelve houses in the birth chart. This innovation was created by psychological astrologers to match sign affinities to related house topics.Pisces was assigned the twelfth house of isolation, confinement, and retreat since Pisces' deep, reflective, and interior territory aligned with the concerns of this house. Since Pisces is ruled by hopeful Jupiter and transcendent Neptune, this system invites these philosophical and spiritual planetary sub-signatures to the twelfth house.The Eleventh HouseIn classical astrology, Pisces' planetary ruler, Jupiter, was said to find its "joy" in the eleventh house of "good spirit" in the birth chart. This house, associated with friends, alliances, hopes, and gifts is a natural, affirming, and happy place for Jupiter to be in.Since Jupiter likes to expand and affirm belief and faith, this house speaks to the opportunities that are available to us when we feel we belong to a loving community. With a connection to the Piscean planetary ruler, these communities could be social, but also spiritual, providing encouragement, validation, and support. The eleventh house is associated with alliances we form, and gifts we receive in our public or social roles, perhaps as an extension of our career activities. Pisces' personality traits are derived from its receptive, feminine, or yin qualities, making this sign oriented toward contemplation and engagement with inner awareness. Alive in both a Pisces woman or Pisces man, these natives have a mystical, inward-looking, and transcendental dynamic in the core of their personality, an ech of the seasonal awakening in the winter.As a mutable sign, Pisces holds adaptive, fluid, and shape-shifting qualities. With the sign of the Two Fishes prominent in their charts are sensitive seekers who have the potential to bring a soulful, healing energy to their relationships and communities.StrengthsThe primary Pisces' strengths can be found in their tender, sympathetic, and receptive natures. Naturally compassionate and empathic, Pisces are wired to offer spiritual and artistic gifts to the world. These are the poets, musicians, painters, and intuitive counselors in our communities.With Jupiter's influence on the faith, belief, and sense of higher purpose, Pisceans can be counted on to offer help and healing support to anyone who is in need. These natives tend to drift through life on their schedule and follow an inner sense that life is unfolding as it should.Idealistic and imaginative, those born under the Two Fishes' sign have an otherworldly quality to them and seem to retain a sense of innocence and wonder their whole lives. These natives often believe in the good of others and will likely give the benefit of the doubt.When they fall in love, Pisceans do so completely and will give much of themselves to their friends and partners to selflessly nurture a connection. Pisces natives seem to be born with an open conduit to the other side, and those with prominent Piscean chart placements are often mystics, mediums, and psychics.While the rest of us may outgrow the playful reveries of our childhood, there is a part of the Pisces personality that never becomes fully practical or attached to material possessions. They often retreat into a meditative solitude to recharge and contemplate, a practice that is especially important to these sensitive souls. With few attachments, their mutable natures are ready to move and adapt to new surroundings or ideas, making it hard for them to get bored or stuck in a rut.As the twelfth and final sign of the zodiac, the Piscean archetype is that of the old soul who may be living its last incarnation before ascending to the heavens.WeaknessesSome potential weaknesses in the Pisces archetype are rooted in their great strengths. Though natives with this sign are tender and sympathetic, they may take certain comments too much to heart and get easily wounded, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients.Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind.Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and artists, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs and air signs.Fire signsSensitive and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming.For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but may fundamentally be too different to truly meld.Sagittarius and Pisces share a Jupiter rulership, which can help them find affinities and relate. Both are mystic, idealistic seekers, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction.Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces retreats into solitude, making it challenging for these two to find a mutual rhythm.Air signsSwift, speedy, and social, air signs could at first be fun and refreshing in Pisces' sensual and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with.Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different natures may tend to work at cross purposes. Though they share a mutable mode, they are different in every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces wants to go deep, making it hard for them to merge long term.Aquarius with Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term.Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar, soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and positive life strategies.With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems.Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants.Wellness professionals of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs