A clear understanding of the exam format: A candidate must be aware or have a clear understanding of the exam format. This can be done by visiting the official TOEFL website. An understanding of both the formats of the exam which is an internet-based test (iBT) and a paper-based test (PBT) is a must. Choose the best study guide: Choose a good TOEFL study guide that provides the candidate with how to start preparation, study plans, study advice, strategy tips, practice questions, and example answers for all sections of the exam. There are various books you can select the best books for TOEFL preparation. Strict to a study routine: A candidate must follow the timetable in advance of their test date. Allocate proper time to each section and dedicatedly increase study hours as the exam approaches. A consistent routine will the candidate stay organized, and focused to cover all sections of the exam. Try to read and listen to English from outside sources as well: There are many English language materials beyond TOEFL resources. The candidates must indulge themselves in those resources such as reading novels, watching English movies, and listening to English songs. It helps the candidates to expose themselves to real-world English usage. The English practice can enhance their language skills. Practice speaking English: Regular English practice helps the candidates overcome language barriers. The candidates can build confidence by engaging themselves in conversations, recording themselves, or participating in language exchange programs. Practice writing practice by setting a timer: The candidates can face or feel exam pressure when they practice under timed conditions. This practice also improves time management skills. The candidates must set time limits for each part of the essay such as planning, writing, and revising. Learn the QWERTY keyboard: Practice the QWERTY keyboard layout if a candidate is not accustomed to it. Since the TOEFL internet-based test (iBT) requires typing essays, practice typing on a QWERTY keyboard to improve typing speed and accuracy is a must. Practice with TOEFL sample papers: TOEFL practice tests and sample papers are a valuable aspect of the TOEFL preparation strategy. The sample papers will contain questions similar to questions in the actual test. Solving sample papers gives a good idea of what to expect on test day. Solving sample questions will also give an insight into strengths and weaknesses and the areas aspirants need to improve when preparing for the TOEFL exam. All TOEFL Practice Tests Taking TOEFL practice tests is a great way to prepare for the TOEFL exam. Our TOEFL sample exams are based on Mastering English Grammar is critical for everyone who wants to write and speak with confidence. Whether you are preparing for a standardized test (such as if you want to migrate to most English-speaking countries, you'll need to demonstrate a knowledge of the English language. There's a standardized test for this, The TOEFL iBT scores range from 0 to 120. The four sections (reading, listening, speaking and writing) are each given scores on a scale from 1 to 30. By the end of this short article, you will be able to distinguish the difference between the Reading, Listening, Speaking and Writing sections of the TOEFL. You will also discover five TOEFL study tips to help organize your study schedule and improve your TOEFL score. After the Reading section, you will have to complete the Listening section, which will take about 36 minutes. The Listening section is divided into two identical parts. In each part, you will have three listening passages: one conversation between a student and campus employee and two academic lectures. The conversations last 2-4 minutes, and the academic lectures are approximately five minutes each. You will be asked five questions after the conversation, ten in total, and six questions after each of the four academic lectures, 24 in total. The question types, like in the Reading section, vary. This chart explains the question types, with examples of phrasing, and the frequency of the question type: Curious what these conversations and lectures sound like? Exam English provides some audio samples here. After the listening comes the TOEFL Speaking section. The structure of this section is different from the reading and listening. In the speaking section, you will encounter four questions. The first is an independent question, and the next three are integrated questions. Let's take a closer look at each since they all follow a different structure. The first question is usually a paired-choice question, which means you must decide between two choices. For example: "Do you agree or disagree: all high school students should wear school uniforms." The questions range in subject matter, so there is no way to prepare a specific answer before the exam. You might be asked a question about business, travel, education, family, friendship, and so on. After the question is asked, you will be given 15 seconds to prepare a response and 45 seconds to speak. Question two is the first of three integrated speaking questions. This is probably the easiest of all the integrated speaking questions. First, you will read a short announcement about a new rule or policy on campus. Like question two, question three will begin with a short reading passage. In task four, you are expected to listen to an academic topic for two to three minutes and then report on the information you heard. You will be given 20 seconds to prepare and 60 seconds to speak. In your response, you must be able to identify the topic of the lecture and the most important details. Finally, you have arrived at the last section, the TOEFL Writing section. The Writing section lasts about 30 minutes. Here, you will be expected to write an essay in response to two separate writing tasks. The first is an integrated writing task, and the second is called Writing for an Academic Discussion. The integrated writing is almost identical to question #4 in the TOEFL Speaking section. You will read a passage, listen to a lecture, and then write about the two. The last question on the exam was introduced on July 26, 2023. Writing for an Academic Discussion. You will be asked to contribute to an online discussion where a professor will pose a question, and two students offer their opinions. You will be expected to write at least 100 words that contribute to the discussion. Check out an example below: If you are struggling, practice without a timer first.
