Wood floor gap filler

... After researching different options, I have found that using a wood floor gap filler is the best solution. For smaller gaps (less than 1/4 inch), a flexible caulk or putty can be used. As the stairs are stripped down their original shape and beauty becomes more defined and you can begin to see how they looked when first built, and what potential they have. Once the stairs have been taken back to natural wood we will repair any loose, creaking or snagged boards and fill in any gaps which have appeared over the years to ensure your staircase is safe. It's so strong and durable, I feel like it could withstand a gorilla's strength (hence the name). Hardwood stairs, when properly treated and given a touch of TLC, can become a show-stopping feature of any home. The sanding process often throws up flaws, nails, cracks and other small flaws which, if left untreated, can detract from the elegant appearance of the floor. At the Floor Sanding Co we have many years experience in the renovation and restoration of all types of natural wood staircases. So you can contact us with confidence, knowing that we'll give you the best advice and the best service with no pressure. Definitely a must-have product for any household." 3.
